Press Release of December 14, 2012

Mr Bernie Ecclestone
Formula 1 Management

The Sealand Generator (VRIL Technology) and the Formula 1

As you may gather from the correspondence between Mr Bernie Ecclestone and the Minister for Cultural Affairs and Information of the Principality of Sealand, Urs Thoenen (see attachments to this press release), we have informed Mr Bernie Ecclestone that the targeted application of the VRIL technology the new Formula 1 world champion may be determined before the season starts. Following the request of Mr Ecclestone we will in order to maintain equal chances in the Formula 1 give the active teams access to the Sealand-Generator (Vril Technology)

Winfried Kretschmann
Prime Minister of Baden-Württemberg

VRIL Technology and the Energy Reversal

We further informed the Prime Minister of Baden-Württemberg and current President of the German Bundesrat, Mr Winfried Kretschmann, that the Sealand-Generator (Vril Technology) will contribute to the solution of many of the actual problems. Apparently our request to Mr Kretschmann can at this time due to the present legal situation in the Federal Republic of Germany (SHAEF Legislator USA) not be implemented. Or does Mr Kretschmann lack the necessary courage?

For the Government Commission Vrilia

From the fact that it is the last segment in the 43-minutes broadcast one may discern the relevance of the presentation concerning foreign rule, yet the makers did not mention it in the contents list above.

Remarkable is the final presentation according to which the Federal German Government failed to answer the simple question by the editors whether Germany was sovereign!

Dear Sir,

as we could gather from media reports there seemed to be some problems with the Red Bull team in July before the German Grand Prix that culminated in the threat of disqualification for technical reasons. This threat was rescinded before the start of the racing days, but obviously the Red Bull team will now be closely scrutinized.

Since we have been and still are in touch with several of the racing teams, we like to point out the following:

As you may see on our Homepage http://principality-of-sealand.eu/vril/vril_e.html, we have over the last 15 years developed further the Vril technology in the form of the Sealand generator for civilian use. With explosion motors (combustion engines) we notice – without any mechanical interventions and generally not detectable – a clear increase of the Nm readings (torque) and other parameter improvements. In the field of Formula 1 especially such decisive improvements are determining factors for becoming world champion. Who controls this technology and knows how to use it may determine the winner, in Formula 1 the world champion, before the season begins. Some time ago we had made a contract with Ferrari, signed by Ross Brawn. The Red Bull company among others is also informed about this technology.

In order to establish equal opportunities for all the teams we would like to ask for a personal meeting so you could personally experience the effectiveness and impact of cosmic energy. This technology had been developed by German engineers and scientists during the 20s, 30s and 40s of last century. Today governments all over the world are aware of its reality, not least through the existence of flying discs.

We would appreciate if you would allow us to discuss this proposal with you in a personal meeting. We hope to hear from you by the end of August. Should there be no contact we would assume that you are not interested in any further clarification.

Sincerely yours

(Urs Thoenen)
